Control & efficiency

Report Launchpad allows you to establish a centralized, server based repository for all of your VISUAL reporting. This eliminates the need to manually update each user workstation separately.

For organizations that have deployed reporting by individual workstations, revision control can be diffi cult and tedious.

With the Report Launchpad, all reports are run from the central VISUAL server, providing better control and efficiency over reporting infrastructure management.

Before version 9.0 of Crystal, reports could be compiled for distribution. This functionality has been removed in Crystal, requiring you to run reports as native .rpt files.

Revision Control

With the Report Launchpad, all reports are run as compiled code. In addition, your IT staff and users must manually maintain outside processes to control and recover prior revisions.

The Report Launchpad maintains all revision control, including all past revisions and usage statistics by report. For security, users who are allowed to view or run reports must be administered using processes that are external to VISUAL. With the Report Launchpad, standard VISUAL Program Security tables are used, which greatly simplifies security management
